SHORT SYNOPSIS.

Malloy, a young construction engineer, right out of college, Irish as they make 'em, is assigned to a project and immediately falls in love with the builder's daughter. The builder's secretary is in love with the girl and puts a Swede on the structural job with Malloy to bring harm to the young Irishman by delaying the building enough to arouse the ire of the girl's father. With this handicap, Malloy works all the harder, never once looking gloomy or bottling up his Irish wit and good humor, until a strike brings him and the Swede to blows and settles which one is master of the outfit. Then the girl must be won all over again — but that's a snap for an Irish lad.
